Brief travel info regarding Rome:

Maps showing monuments, bus and metro routes are available free from the tourist office at the main train station (Termini) or near Piazza Repubblica. You may buy maps at a newspaper stand also.

If you park a car in downtown Rome, many of the legal parking places are designated by a “blue line” on the pavement. This requires the purchase of a ticket from a machine located on each block, cost = 1.00 euro / hour. The stamped ticket must be placed inside the car above the steering wheel where it can be seen through the front window.

There are 2 Metro (underground train) lines, A and B. You must have a ticket before boarding a bus or a Metro – the same ticket can be used for either (“Metro bus”). They are good for 75 minutes of rides-one metro ride and as many bus as desired- and they sell for 1.50 Euro. Tickets must be stamped when you get on the rear door of the bus or before you enter the metro subway platform.

Churches and most museums are only open in the mornings.

The large basilicas, including St. Peters, are open all day as are the Vatican Museums. Appropriate clothing is required (no shorts, tank tops, hats, etc.) The Vatican Museums (including Sistine Chapel) are closed on Sundays, except for the last Sunday of the month. Most public museums are closed on Mondays.

(These patch requirements were developed in 1987 by Junior Troop 30, of the USA Girl Scouts - Rome The patch was designed by Kimberly S. from that troop).
